INTRODUCTION

The University of Utah, SJ Quinney College of Law, Global Justice Project: Iraq is funded by a grant from the US State Department, Bureau of International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs.

The Iraqi Criminal Procedure Code 23 of 1971 replaced the Baghdad Procedure Code of 1919. It was modelled on the Egyptian Criminal Procedure Code 150 of 1950, which itself was based upon the Napoleonic Codes adopted in Egypt in the late 19th Century.

Although widely referred to in English as ‘The Criminal Procedure Code’ the word for word literal translation of the Arabic (qanun usul al-muhaakamaat al-jizaiyya) is principles of penal (jazaiyya) trials (muhaakamaat)

The original translated text of the Criminal Procedure Code 23 of 1971 was taken from the PDF file incorporating amendments up to 1986 which is freely available in a number of places including:

<http://www.unhcr.org/refworld/docid/468a674a2.html>

http://law.case.edu/saddamtrial/documents/Iraqi_Criminal_Procedure_Code.pdf

The translation was revised in part by GJPI; many omissions and errors were identified and amended; all post-1971 amendments were checked against the texts in the Arabic Official Gazette, the English language Official Gazette, published between 1959 and 2002, the CPA era Official Gazette published in English and Arabic in 2003 – 2004 and GJPI English translations of the post CPA era Official Gazette where relevant.

We can say that it is better than when we first started, but we cannot guarantee the accuracy of the translation. A number of errors have come to light only when we deepened our understanding of the way that the law operated and we cannot claim to have perfected this understanding.

Some anomalies remain:

The CPA Orders would appear to have been written in English and then translated into Arabic. Sometimes the translation gives a different result when the order is applied to an English translated text compared to the Arabic text. We have tried to capture the effect on the Arabic text.

CPA Memorandum 3, which amends a number of provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, exists in two versions – the version signed on 18 June 2003 and published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003 and a revised version, signed on 27 June 2004, which was never published in the Official Gazette (which is the version on the CPA archive website at <http://www.cpa-iraq.org/regulations/index.html>).

In so far as it directly applies to the text of the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971, the primary substantive difference is that Article 179 was purportedly amended to delete the words “A refusal to answer will be considered as evidence against the Defendant” in the original published CPA Memorandum 3, but not in the revised unpublished version. This difference may have been caused by the fact that the phrase actually contained in Article 179 of the Criminal Procedure Code has the opposite meaning (“A refusal to answer will not be considered as evidence against the Defendant” [our emphasis]) and therefore did not need amendment. There is also a different numbering scheme between the two versions. CPA orders and memoranda are said to have come into force upon the date of signature (rather than publication) and are not made under any of Iraq’s pre-2003 constitutions. However publication in the Official Gazette would appear to be being regarded as a de-facto requirement and Iraqi Arabic texts and commentaries² do not follow the revised version – and nor do the laws which have been passed to amend or repeal various provisions of CPA Memorandum 3, such as the Law Re-establishing the procedures concerning the Death Penalty No. 13 of 2007, which refers to the organisational structure of the original CPA Memorandum 3. We have therefore relied upon the text and structure of the original CPA Memorandum 3.

In both versions of Memorandum 3, the text providing the right to legal representation whilst in detention³ is poorly translated. The aim in English was to give those accused suspected of a felony [jinaiyya] offence the right to legal representation whilst in detention (although free legal representation does not seem to be envisaged).

³ Original version, section 8(1). Revised version, section 7(1).

Instead the Arabic translation uses the term [jinaiyya jazaiyya] this conveys the meaning merely of a criminal offence generally (not specifically a felony).

Articles 285 to 293 (operation of the death penalty) were suspended by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(m) and then restored by Law 13 of 2007 which purported to have retrospective effect. One consequence of that retrospective effect would be that any one executed other than in accordance with these provisions in the intervening period was not lawfully executed.

There are a number of references to the Ministry of Justice or the Minister of Justice within the text of the Criminal Procedure Code which are clearly designed to refer to the Ministry in its former role in authority over the judiciary. CPA Order 35 re-established the Council of Judges independent of the Ministry of Justice (the Council of Judges later evolved into the Higher Judicial Council pursuant to CPA Order 100 Section 3(13) and Article 45 of the Transitional Administrative Law). Section 7 of CPA Memorandum 12, signed on 8 May 2004, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3985 of July 2004 rather unhelpfully states:

References in Iraqi law to the Ministry of Justice or the Minister of Justice shall, where necessary and proper in light of CPA Order 35 or the Law of Administration for the State of Iraq for the Transitional Period, or where otherwise necessary and proper to maintain the independence of the judiciary, be construed to refer to the Council of Judges or its President, or to the Court of Cassation or its Chief Judge, or to the Supreme Federal Court or its Presiding Judge, as appropriate. The courts shall have sole jurisdiction to adjudicate disputes in this connection.

We have made reference to this change wherever relevant. There is one reference (in Article 136(A)) where it is arguably neither necessary nor proper to alter the text from Minister of Justice to a judicial figure given the political nature of the decision making envisaged.

Where it appears necessary to improve clarity, we have indicated in square brackets before the word ‘judge’ that the reference must mean [investigative] judge⁴. We have also indicated in square brackets where the word ‘investigator’⁵ must mean [judicial] investigator⁶ (a class of persons employed by the Higher Judicial Council) or in the alternative a police investigator who has formally been given the powers of a judicial investigator pursuant to Article 51(E) of the Criminal Procedure Code and RCC Resolution 12 of 1995. We have used the rather inadequate translation ‘crime scene officer’ as a translation of ‘a’dah al-dhabit al-qadai’.⁷ ‘Accused’ is used as a translation of mutahim rather than ‘defendant’ which relates to civil cases. The words iqrar (admission) and i’tiraf (confession) appear to have been used interchangeably.

A separate text contains the law as it applies in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq. Following Kurdish Decree 11 of 1992, the view of Kurdish lawyers, judges and legislators is that save for laws relating to the exclusive federal powers as listed in Article 110 of the 2005 Constitution, post 1992, new laws and amendments to existing law originating from Baghdad are not recognised as applicable in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq unless expressly endorsed by legislation of the Kurdistan Parliament. This includes the CPA orders issued in 2003 / 2004 - despite the wording of Articles 26 and 54(B) of the Transitional Administrative Law.

It may be noteworthy that the recommendations presented to the Council of Representatives by the sub-committee to the Constitutional Review Committee have proposed that Criminal (and Civil) Procedure matters become part of the exclusive federal jurisdiction. Only time will tell if these amendments are passed.

BOOK ONE
CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS¹¹

SECTION 1

Article 1

- A. Criminal proceedings are initiated by means of an oral or written complaint submitted to an investigative judge¹², a [judicial] investigator, a policeman in charge of a police station, or any crime scene officer by an injured party, any person taking his place in law, or any person who knows that the crime has taken place. In addition any one of those listed can notify the Public Prosecution unless the law says otherwise. In the event of a witnessed offence the complaint may be submitted to whichever police officers or sub-officers are present.
- B. An offence is considered to have been witnessed if it was witnessed whilst being committed or a shortly afterwards or if the victim followed the perpetrator afterwards or if shouting crowds followed him afterwards or if the perpetrator was found a short while later carrying the equipment or weapons or goods or documents or other things pointing to the fact that he was a perpetrator or participant in the offence or if traces or signs indicate this at the time.

Article 2

The complaint may not be dropped, cancelled or withdrawn from nor can the judgment issued on it be withdrawn from or not executed, except under the circumstances explained in the law.

Article 3

- A. The complaint can only be set in motion on the basis of a complaint from the aggrieved party or someone taking his place in law in relation to the following offences:
- i. Adultery or polygamy in contravention of the law of personal circumstances.
 - ii. Slander, verbal abuse, divulging secrets, threats or slight injury provided that the offence was not committed against someone in the performance of a public service or because of it.¹³
 - iii. Theft, rape, breach of trust, fraud, or acquisition of items by these means, if the aggrieved party is a spouse or descendent of the perpetrator and these items were not seized legally or administratively or legally transferred to another person.
 - iv. Damage to property or sabotage, other than that involving slate property, if the offence is not subject to aggravating circumstances.
 - v. Violation of the sanctity of property, entering or passing through land that has been ¹¹ In accordance with the 4th and 5th sub-paragraphs of Article 65 of the Law of Judicial Regulation No 160 of 1979 the expression 'the Criminal Court' has replaced the expression 'The Supreme Penal Court' and the expression 'The Court of Misdemeanours' has replaced the expression 'The Penal Court' wherever they are mentioned in the laws and the term 'examination jurisdiction' has become 'the investigative court' with effect from 16 January 1980 in the paragraphs beneath.

¹² Since the issue of the Judicial Regulation No. 160 of 1979 the word qadi (judge) has been used instead of the word hakim (judge).

¹³ The original text read "Slander, verbal abuse, spreading false information, oral threats or slight injury provided that the offence was not committed against someone in the performance of a public service", it was amended by Law 9 of 1992 (Eleventh amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No 23 of 1971, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3402 of 20 April 1992 and then again by Law 20 of 1999 (Amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No 23 of 1971), published in the Official Gazette, issue 3785 of 2 August 1999 to read as presently stated

- cultivated, prepared for cultivation or contains crops or allowing animals to go into such land.
- vi. Throwing stones or other items at means of transport, houses, buildings, gardens or compounds.
 - vii. Other offence which the law stipulates cannot be set in motion except on the basis of a complaint by the injured party.

B. No criminal complaint can be set in motion in relation to offences that took place outside Iraq except with the permission of the Minister of Justice.¹⁴

Article 4

- A. If the aggrieved parties in the offences referred to in the previous Article are numerous, it is sufficient to have the complaint submitted by one of them.
- B. In the case that there are numerous persons accused, and the complaint was submitted against one of them, it is considered to have been submitted against the other persons accused, except in the offence of adultery where the complaint is not set in motion against the alleged perpetrator unless it is also submitted against the adulterous husband or wife.

Article 5

If there is a conflict of interests between the injured party and the person representing him, or if he does not have anyone to represent him, the investigative judge or the court must appoint someone to represent him.

Article 6

A complaint, as detailed in Article 3 of this law, will no longer be accepted once three months have passed from the date when the aggrieved party became aware of the offence or from the disappearance of any compelling excuse which prevented the submission of the complaint; and the right to submit the complaint will be dropped in the event of the death of the aggrieved party unless the law stipulates to the contrary.

Article 7

If the aggrieved party passes away after submitting the complaint, this death will have no effect on the processing of the complaint.

Article 8¹⁵

If the law on setting in motion a case stipulates that a complaint must be submitted, no action may be taken against the perpetrator of the offence until the complaint has been submitted. The complainant is dismissed if, after the complaint is filed, it is not followed up by the complainant for three months without lawful excuse, and the judge will then dismiss the complaint and finally close the case.

Article 9

¹⁴ Where necessary, the term Minister of Justice is to be replaced with the most appropriate body pursuant to CPA Memorandum 12, Section 7

¹⁵ This text was substituted for the original text by Law No. 119 of 1987 (Amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No 23 of 1971), published in the Official Gazette, issue 3184 of 11 January 1988

- A. The submission of the complaint should include the claim for criminal justice which is a petition that penal measures be taken against the perpetrator of the offence and for the penalty to be imposed on him. The written complaint includes the claim for civil justice as long as the complainant does not declare otherwise.
- B. The criminal court will not consider civil justice claims other than in accordance with criminal justice claims.
- C. The person who submitted the complaint has the right to withdraw from it. If a number of persons submitted the complaint and some of them withdraw, this does not invalidate the rights of the others.
- D. If a person who had the right to submit the complaint dies, the right to submit the case does not transfer to his heirs.
- E. If there are many persons accused and the complaint against one of them is withdrawn, this does not extend to the others, unless the law stipulates otherwise.
- F. If the plaintiff withdraws his complaint, he will, as a consequence, lose his right to criminal justice but will not lose his right to submit a civil case unless by his own declaration.
- G. The withdrawal of a civil claim will not result in the loss of the right to submit a criminal claim except in circumstances stipulated by the law or by declaration of the plaintiff, and in any event does not affect the case of public justice.
- H. Withdrawal of the complaint or from the civil case prohibits any claim for the restoration of the withdrawn right before any civil or penal court.
- I. The withdrawal of the complaint by the plaintiff prohibits the criminal court from looking into the civil case but does not prevent the plaintiff from petitioning the civil court, unless he makes a declaration to that effect.

Chapter 1 - The civil plaintiff in and the person responsible under civil law for the actions of the accused

Article 10

A person who has suffered direct material or ethical damage from any offence has the right to bring a civil case against the accused and the person responsible under civil law for the actions of the accused, under the provisions of Article 9. The complaint is made by petition or by oral request, confirmed in the written record during the gathering of evidence or during the initial investigation or before the court which is already considering the criminal case, up to the issue of the definitive judgment. It is not permissible to raise it for the first time at the cassation stage.

Article 11

If the person who has suffered damage from the offense is not competent to conduct a lawsuit under civil law then someone must be appointed to represent him legally, and if someone cannot be found then the investigative judge or the court must appoint someone to take on the civil case in his place.

Article 12

If the accused is not fit to be tried under civil law, then the civil proceedings are lodged against any person representing him legally and, if no one is representing him, someone is appointed to represent him in accordance with Article 11.

Article 13

A civil case against those responsible under civil law may be brought either collectively or individually in accordance with criminal procedures.

Article 14

The person responsible under civil law for the actions or the accused has the right to intervene in criminal proceedings at any time before the judgment is issued, in the event that there is no civil claim.

Article 15

- A. The accused or the person responsible for the actions of the accused under civil law has the right of objection before the criminal court against the intervention in the criminal proceedings of the civil plaintiff.
- B. The civil plaintiff has the right to object to the intervention in the criminal proceedings of the person responsible under civil law.

Article 16

- A. The court will make a judgement on objections submitted in accordance with Article 15 after hearing arguments from the opposing parties.
- B. The court may issue a ruling that the civil plaintiff or person responsible for the actions of the accused may not intervene in the criminal proceedings, provided there are no grounds for doing so and no objections have been submitted.
- C. If these objections are raised before the investigative judge they are forwarded to the relevant court, to be examined in conjunction with the criminal proceedings.

Article 17

The judgement of non-intervention of the civil plaintiff does not prevent the person responsible under civil law for the actions or the accused from referring to the civil courts.

Article 18

The judge who issued the arrest warrant must record on it the duty to release the person arrested if he makes a written pledge to attend at a specific time, with or without bail as specified by the judge, or with a pledge accompanied by a financial deposit to the treasury for an amount specified by the judge. When the person arrested gives this pledge or sum of money he must be released. The persons to whom the warrant has been sent must inform the judge of steps taken.

Article 96

If a person who should have had a summons or arrest warrant issued against him, appears before the judge or [judicial] investigator, the judge must ask him for a written pledge, with or without bail, saying that he will attend at the required time. If he does not attend, and does not have a legal excuse, the judge must issue an arrest warrant.

Article 97

If the person does not attend after being summoned, without a legal excuse, or if there is a fear that he will abscond or influence the investigation, or if he does not have a specific place of residence, the judge may issue a warrant for his arrest.

Article 98

Any judge may issue an arrest warrant against any person who has committed an offence in his presence.

Article 99

In the case of an offence punishable by a period of detention exceeding one year, the accused is called to attend by the issue of an arrest warrant against him, unless the judge sanctions the issue of a summons. However, the issuing of a summons for an offence punishable by death or life imprisonment is not permitted.

Article 100

If the arrest warrant is to be executed outside the area of jurisdiction of the judge who issued it, the person charged with its execution should present it to the appropriate judge in the area for permission to execute it, unless he believes that the opportunity to arrest the person will be missed.

Article 101

- A. If the arrest warrant is executed outside the jurisdiction of the judge who issued it, and if there is no permission to release the accused by pledge or bail as stipulated in Article 95, the judge must detain him and send him under escort to the judge who issued the warrant.
- B. If the bail put forward by the accused is not accepted, or if he is unable to make the pledge as stipulated in Article 95, the judge must detain him and send him under escort to the judge who issued the warrant.

Article 105

If this is not allowed, the person making the arrest may enter this place or any place in which the accused has taken refuge, by force, in order to arrest him.

Article 106

Any person arresting someone in accordance with paragraphs 102 and 103 must bring the person arrested to the nearest police station or hand him over to a member of the judicial authorities, who must hand him over to the police, and if comes to the attention of an official in the police station that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of this person, he must bring him before the person who issued the warrant. If it is clear that he has committed an offence, the police official must take legal steps in this regard, and if it is clear that he is not guilty of the charge, he must be released immediately.

Article 107

Anyone who arrests someone in accordance with the law must take from him any weapons he is carrying and hand them over immediately to the person issuing the arrest warrant or to the nearest police station or to any member of the police.

Article 108

If the accused resists arrest or tries to escape, the person arresting him in accordance with the law may use reasonable force to enable him to carry out the arrest and to move him without allowing him to escape, provided that this does not lead to the death of anyone who has not committed an offence for which the death penalty or life imprisonment is prescribed.

CHAPTER 3 - DETENTION AND RELEASE OF THE ACCUSED

Article 109³²

- A. If the person arrested is accused of an offence punishable by a period of detention exceeding 3 years or by imprisonment for a term of years or life imprisonment³³, the judge may order that he be held for a period of no more 15 days on each occasion or order his release on a pledge with or without bail from a guarantor, and that he attend then requested if the judge rules that release of the accused will not lead to his escape and will not prejudice the investigation.
- B. If the person arrested is accused of an offence punishable by death the period stipulated in sub-paragraph A may be extended for as long as necessary for the investigation to proceed until the investigative judge or criminal court issues a decision on the case on completion of the preliminary or judicial investigation or the trial.
- C. The total period of detention should not exceed one quarter of the maximum permissible sentence for the offence with which the arrested person is charged and should not, in any case, exceed 6 months. If it is necessary to increase the period of detention to more than 6 months, the judge must submit the case to the Felony Court to seek permission for an appropriate extension, which must not itself exceed one quarter of maximum permissible sentence, or he should order his release, with or without bail, subject to paragraph B.

³² CPA Order 31, signed 10 September 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3980 of March 2004 in Section 6 states, "Notwithstanding the bail provisions contained in Paragraph 109 of the Criminal Proceedings Law No. 23 of 1971 the reviewing judge may order a person suspected of committing an offense punishable by life imprisonment to be held without bail until trial." The Arabic version of this section makes it clear that the reference is to offences punishable by 'life which means life' – rather than just life imprisonment as defined in Article 87 of the Penal Code

Article 110

- A. If the person arrested is accused of an offence punishable by a period of detention of 3 years or less or by a fine, the judge must release him on a pledge with or without bail unless he considers that such a release will obstruct the investigation or lead to the accused absconding.
- B. If the person arrested is accused of an infraction, he may not be held unless he has no particular place of residence.

Article 111

The judge who issued the decision to detain the accused may decide to release him on a pledge, with or without bail, before the end of the period of detention stipulated in sub-paragraph B of Article 109, and he may return him to the holding detention if necessary for the investigation.

Article 112

A [judicial] investigator in locations which are distant from the office of the judge should hold those accused of felonies. In the case of misdemeanours, they should release the accused on bail and must, in all cases, report the matter to the judge as quickly as possible, and carry out whatever order is prescribed.

Article 113

An order to hold a person should include the full name of the person to be held, the paragraph of law under which he is held, the date of the start of the detention and the date of its expiry. It should be signed by the issuing judge and stamped by the court.

Article 114

- A. The amount of the pledge or bail is set according to the conditions of each case, and it must be appropriate for the type of offence and the circumstances of the accused.
- B. Bail is accepted if the judge or [judicial] investigator or policeman in charge of a police station is satisfied that it can be paid.
- C. Bail money is accepted from the accused or bailman in cash and deposited in the court treasury or police station.

Article 115

When the pledge, bail or cash sum is submitted, the accused is released if he is not being held for another offence.

Article 116

If the bailman dies or if the bail is broken, because the bailman is unable to pay or has been deceitful, or if there appears to be a mistake in the bail, or there is another reason that the bailman is not able to fulfil the bail, the judge may issue an arrest warrant against the accused or another bail order, and if this too remains unpaid, he is detained.

Article 117

The bailman may request exemption from the bail if the person bailed appears in front of the judge or is handed over to a police station. At the time, the judge will issue decision to cancel the bail and may order the detention of the accused if he does not pay the bail.

Article 118

The bail or pledge is exempt from taxes.

Article 119

- A. If the accused does not fulfil his pledge, or the bailman does not pay the bail, he is transferred to the Misdemeanour Court on a decision from the investigative judge or criminal court, so that the sum which should have been paid can be collected. The court may decide to take all or part of the money; depending on the circumstances of the case, may excuse the accused or bailman if there were reasons of necessity for the lack of payment; or may make an order either that the money be paid in instalments over a period of no longer than a year or that the sum deposited in cash in accordance with Article 114 be confiscated, or that the accuser's possessions be seized and sold in accordance with the Law of Implementation, based on the report presented by the court to the person in charge of the implementation, with the sum specified taken from the price achieved, due regard being given to the provisions of other laws specifying items which may not be seized and sold.³⁴
- B. If the sum raised by the sale of possessions is not sufficient to pay the due sum, and there are no more goods to be seized, or if the issue of a decree to obtain the due sum is forestalled by a statement of settlement which is acceptable, the court may decree a period of detention not exceeding 6 months.
- C. The money seized or realized from sale of the seized goods is confiscated and paid to the treasury.
- D. If the sum deposited is not confiscated by the court because of an infraction of the pledge or bail, it returns to the owner after a verdict of not guilty or not liable, discharge of the accused or definitive rejection of the complaint against him.

Article 120

- A. If the accused dies, procedures against him and against the bailman for any infringement of the pledge or bail are stopped.
- B. If the bailman dies, procedures against him for any violation of the bail are stopped.
- C. Procedures for the seizure and sale of goods and payment by instalments are stopped in the situations mentioned in sub-paragraphs A and B above, and there is no need for the estate to pay the money not recovered.

CHAPTER 4 - SEIZURE OF POSSESSIONS OF AN ACCUSED PERSON WHO HAS ABSCONDED

³⁴ The text of sub-paragraph A is as amended according to Article 27 of Law of Implementation No 45 of 1980, published in the Official Gazette, issue 2762 of 17 March 1980

Article 121

- A. If an arrest warrant issued against the accused for the commission of a felony is not executed, the investigating judge and criminal court may issue an order for the seizure of the moveable and immoveable property of the accused. After execution, papers are immediately sent to the Court of Felony, and if supported by the court, the authorities who decided on the detention will issue a statement, published in the local newspapers, on the television and using other methods of publication as appropriate, which states the name of the accused, the offence of which he is accused and the property which has been seized. It will ask him to give himself up to the nearest police station within 3 days. It will also ask that any person with knowledge of the location of the accused inform the nearest police station. If the Court of Felony does not support it, the seizure is cancelled. If the decree of seizure was issued by the Court of Felony, it is implemented, and the statement is issued without need for approval from any other authority.
- B. If the accused does not give himself up within the period stipulated, the authorities which issued the decree of seizure will deposit moveable assets with the judicial guard for safekeeping and they will be administered under his supervision. The immoveable assets will be handed over to the Office for Confiscated Property to administer, in its capacity as property with an absentee owner. The property will remain confiscated in this way until the death of the accused is proven; he is sentenced or proved guilty or not liable; he is discharged; or the complaint against him is dropped. At that point, the property will be returned to him or whoever is the rightful owner.
- C. If the property seized will deteriorate quickly or is expensive to maintain, or if the authorities issuing the decree of seizure decide to sell it, it is sold in accordance with the Law of Implementation based on a memo sent to the person in charge of implementation.³⁵
- D. If the accused gives himself up or is arrested, either the seized property or its value is returned in full.
- E. Any person to whom an accused person who has absconded owes money on a legal basis, shall be paid monthly from the seized assets at the same rate as payment was being made before the seizure, by decree of the authorities which issued the decree of seizure.

Article 122

If a person applies to the authorities issuing the decree of seizure, claiming ownership of the seized items, and presents sufficient proof, the authorities will hand over the items to him. If his request is rejected, he has the right to make a claim in a civil court or use the legal appeal process against the decision.

CHAPTER FIVE - QUESTIONING OF THE ACCUSED

Article 123³⁶

³⁵ amended in accordance with Article 101 of Law 201 of 1978 (6th amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code), published in the Official Gazette, issue 2691 of 8 January 1979; and Article 27 of the Law of Implementation No 45 of 1980, published in the Official Gazette, issue 2762 of 17 March 1980

³⁶ sub-sections (B) and (C) were added by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(c), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003. Note also CPA Memorandum 3, section 5 which provides the right to be informed upon arrest of the right to remain silent and the right to an attorney. Note also CPA

- A. The investigative judge or [judicial] investigator must question the accused within 24 hours of his presentation³⁷, after proving his identity and informing him of the offence of which he is accused. His statements on this should be recorded, with a statement of evidence in his favour. The accused should be questioned again if necessary to establish the truth.
- B. Before questioning the accused the investigative judge must inform the accused that:
 - i) he or she has the right to remain silent and no adverse inference may be drawn from the accused's decision to exercise that right;
 - ii) he or she has the right to be represented by an attorney, and if he or she is not able to afford representation, the court will provide an attorney at no expense to the accused;
- C. The investigative judge or [judicial] investigator must determine whether the accused desires to be represented by an attorney before questioning the accused. If the accused desires an attorney, the investigative judge or [judicial] investigator shall not question the accused until he or she has retained an attorney or until an attorney has been appointed by the court.

Article 124

The accused has the right to make his statement at any time after listening to the statements of any witness, and to discuss it or to request that he is summoned for this purpose.

Article 125

If it becomes clear that the accused is a witness against another accused, his testimony is recorded and the two cases are separated.

Article 126

- A. The accused does not swear the oath unless acting as a witness for other accused persons.
- B. The accused is not required to answer any of the questions he is asked.

Article 127

The use of any illegal method to influence the accused and extract an admission³⁸ is not permitted. Mistreatment, threats, injury, enticement, promises, psychological influence or use of drugs or intoxicants are considered illegal methods.

Article 128

- A. Statements of the accused are recorded in the written record by the judge or [judicial] investigator and signed by the accused and the judge or [judicial] investigator. If the accused is unable to sign, this should be recorded on the written record.

Memorandum 3, section 8, which expands the right of representation at trial beyond those accused of felonies to those accused of any crimes.

³⁷ hudurahu meaning the point at which the accused presents himself to the authorities following a summons or is presented following an arrest. Note that the constitution in paragraph 19(13) requires the file to be produced before the investigative judge within 24 hours of an arrest

³⁸ oddly the word used here is iqrar (admission) rather than i'tiraf (confession)

- B. If the statement of the accused includes an admission to the commission of an offence, the judge must record the statement himself, and read it back after a period of time. The judge and accused must then sign. If the accused would like to write down his statement in his own hand, the judge must enable him to do this, but it must be in the presence of the judge who must sign it, along with the accused, and after recording this in the written report.
- C. Testimony which the accused asks to present in his defence should be recorded in the written report along with investigation of other proof presented by him, unless the judge decides not to grant the accused's request, because he believes it be an unjustified attempt to impede the investigation, or to mislead the judge.

Article 129

- A. The investigative judge may offer immunity with the agreement of the Felony Court, for reasons recorded in the record, to any person accused of an offence, in order to obtain his testimony against others involved in its commission, on condition that the accused will give a full and true statement. If he accepts the offer, his testimony is heard and he remains an accused person until a decision on the case is issued.
- B. If the accused does not submit a full and true statement, whether through deliberate concealment of any important issue or through false statements, he loses his right to immunity by decree of the criminal court, and procedures are taken against him for the offence for which he was offered immunity or any other related offence. His statements are used as evidence against him.
- C. If the Felony Court finds that the statement given by the accused who has been offered immunity is full and true, then it will halt permanently legal proceedings against him and release him.

CHAPTER 6 - DECISIONS OF THE JUDGE AFTER THE END OF THE INVESTIGATION

Article 130

- A. If the investigative judge finds that the action is not punishable by law or that the complainant has withdrawn the complaint, or that the offence is one over which he has no authority without reference to the judge, or that the accused is not legally responsible because he is a minor, he issues a decision rejecting the complaint and closing the case file definitively.
- B. If the act is punishable by law and the investigative judge finds that there is sufficient evidence for a trial, a decision is issued to transfer the accused to the appropriate court. If there is insufficient evidence he is not transferred, an order is issued for his discharge and the case file is closed temporarily, with a statement containing the reason for the closure.
- C. If the investigative judge finds that the perpetrator is unknown or that the incident was an act of God, he issues a decision to close the case temporarily.
- D. An accused who has been detained will be released once a decision to reject the case or to discharge him has been issued.

- i. If the offences resulted from one action;
 - ii. If the offences resulted from actions linked to each other and for a common purpose;
 - iii. If the offences are of the same type and are committed by the same accused person against the same victim, even if they occur at different times;
 - iv. If the offences are of the same type and occurred within one year against different victims, on the condition that there are no more than 3 victims for each case.
- B. The offences are considered of the same type if they are punishable by the same type of penalty as stipulated by the same paragraph of the law.

Article 133

A single case is brought as stipulated in Article 132 if there are several accused, whether as principals or accessories.

Article 134

- A. A person accused of a felony is transferred to the Court of Felony for a non-summary case. A person accused of a misdemeanor is transferred to the Court of Misdemeanor for a non-summary case if the penalty is a term of detention exceeding three years, or otherwise for a summary or non-summary case.

- C. The statement³⁹ of the accused must be recorded before issue of the decision to transfer the case in accordance with sub-paragraph B, and an investigation of the infraction is ordered by the investigative judge.
- D. With the exception of the provisions in sub-paragraphs B and C, the investigative judge must make an immediate decision on infraction cases in which there is no claim for compensation or return of property, without taking a decision to transfer the case to the Court of Misdemeanors. Any sentence of detention shall not be carried out until a degree of certainty is obtained.⁴⁰⁴¹

Article 135

If the accused does not appear before the investigative judge or [judicial] investigator, and is not arrested despite the use of methods of compulsion as stipulated in this law, or if he escapes after arrest or detention, and if there is sufficient evidence for a transfer to court, the investigative judge issues a

BOOK THREE - COURTS

SECTION 1 - TYPES OF PENAL COURT AND THEIR JURISDICTIONS

Article 137

- A. Penal courts are the Court of Misdemeanour, Court of Felony and Court of Cassation.⁴⁵ These

⁴² Where necessary, the term Minister of Justice is to be replaced with the most appropriate judicial body pursuant to CPA Memorandum 12, Section 7 although sub-section 136(A) may not seem appropriate for such a substitution given its political nature

⁴³ Resolution 453 of 1984, Article 1, published in the Official Gazette on 30 April 1984 added the minister's deputy

⁴⁴ This sub-paragraph has been amended in accordance with Law No. 201 of 1978 (Sixth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2691 of 27 December 1979; RCC Resolution 997 of 30 July 1978, published in the Official Gazette, issue 2667 of 7 August 1978; and RCC Resolution 453 of 1984, published in the Official Gazette on 30 April 1984. It was suspended by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(d) signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003, subsequently re-instated by Interim Government Order 14 of 2005. Its operation was suspended again by the transitional government, re-instated again and suspended again in 2009. It was the subject of the first case brought to the Federal Supreme Court (1 of 2005) and has been the subject of 2 attempts at repeal or amendment by the Council of Representatives in 2007 neither of which were published in the Official Gazette

courts have jurisdiction to consider all criminal cases with a few special exceptions.⁴⁶

- B. Civil government officials who do not have authority, may be granted judicial authority for misdemeanours by decree of the Minister of Justice⁴⁷ based on a proposal from the minister responsible for the implementation of penal authorities stipulated in the relevant laws.⁴⁸

Article 138

- A. The Court of Misdemeanour has jurisdiction in cases of misdemeanours and infractions and can be authorized to give rulings in cases involving only misdemeanours or only infractions.
- B. The Court of Felony has jurisdiction to rule on cases of felonies and to review the cases of the other offences stipulated by law.⁴⁹
- C. The Court of Cassation has jurisdiction to review provisions and rulings issued on felonies, misdemeanours⁵⁰ and other cases stipulated by law.

Article 139

- A. If, either before or after a judicial investigation (or after a trial, in connection with a case transferred in a non-summary form) the Misdemeanour Court having examined the papers believes that the ruling in the penal case is outside its jurisdiction and within the jurisdiction of the Felony Court, then it shall rule that the accused person be transferred to the Felony Court. If the Felony Court finds that the ruling in the case is within the jurisdiction of the Misdemeanour Court, it may either rule on the case or return it to the Misdemeanour Court.
- B. If the Felony Court finds that the ruling in the case referred to it from the investigative judge is within the jurisdiction of the Misdemeanour Court, it may decide on it or transfer the accused person to the Misdemeanour Court.
- C. A decision of the Felony Court to transfer or return is legally binding.

Article 140

⁴⁷ Where necessary, the term Minister of Justice is to be replaced with the most appropriate body pursuant to CPA Memorandum 12, Section 7

⁴⁸ e.g. RCC Resolution 895 of 1981, published in the Official Gazette, issue 2842 of 27 July 1981 authorises the Governors and Heads of the Administrative Units in Qadhas and Nahiyaz with the power of misdemeanor judges in relation to the law of Regulating Fishing and Exploiting the Aquatic Life and its Protection, No 48 of 1976. Article 1 of Resolution 1630 of 1981 states that "Governors and Chief of the administrative units in constituencies and districts are empowered with the jurisdiction of a misdemeanor judge to practice a penal authority stated in laws to give them such authority."

⁴⁹ The Felony Court reviews infraction decisions made by investigative judges

tried is connected to another case on which the accused is being tried in another penal court, it must transfer the accused to this court either before or after charging him with the related offence. A Court of Felony would follow the same transfer procedure from one Court of Felony to another.

Article 141

The provisions of Articles 53, 54 and 55 apply in deciding on territorial jurisdiction for trial and in any dispute over territorial jurisdiction between criminal courts.

Article 142

A case may be transferred from the jurisdiction of one penal court to the jurisdiction of another penal court of the same level by order of the Minister of Justice⁵¹ or decision from the Court of Cassation or Court of Felony within its region, on grounds of security or if the transfer assists in the uncovering of the truth.

SECTION 2 - APPEARANCE IN COURT OF ACCUSED AND OTHER LITIGANTS

Article 143

- A. The court, on receipt of the case file, must set a date for the trial and inform the Public Prosecution, the accused and those with any connection and any of the witnesses who are to testify, by means of a written summons, at least one day before the trial in the case of an infraction, three days before for a misdemeanour and 8 days before for a felony. Informing the accused's attorney of the order to attend does not dispense with the need to inform the accused.
- B. The summons to attend contains the name of the person to be notified and include his role in the case, the names of the accused and victim, the court, case number type of offence, the legal paragraph applicable and the time when they must appear in court.
- C. If it becomes clear, once the notification has been issued, that the accused has absconded, a summons or arrest warrant is pinned up at his place of residence if known, published in two local newspapers and announced on the radio or television in the case of significant felonies or misdemeanours, in accordance with a decision by the court. An appointment is set for the trial within a period of no less than one month from the last date of publication in the newspaper for a misdemeanour or an infraction and two months for felonies.
- D. Other than sub-paragraph C of this article, if the notification proved that the person accused of a crime involving the death penalty has absconded, the arrest warrant issued against him/her should be left for six months at his or her place of residence (if it is known), or should be posted on notice boards of both the court which issued the warrant and the police station in charge of investigating the case. The concerned court shall order that the accused be prevented from travelling and attach his or her movable and immovable properties and shall ask the accused to surrender himself or herself to it or any police station. The court shall determine an appointment to hold the trial no less than two months after completing all the aforementioned procedures and shall inform all concerned authorities.⁵²

⁵¹ Where necessary, the term Minister of Justice is to be replaced with the most appropriate body pursuant to CPA Memorandum 12, Section 7

⁵² Sub-section D was added by Law No. 30 of 2001 (amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 3872 of 2 April 2001

Article 144⁵³

- A. The Head of the Court of Felony appoints a attorney for the accused in felonies⁵⁴ if he has not appointed one and the court sets remuneration for the attorney during judgement on the case⁵⁵. The decision to appoint the representative is considered an order of delegation. If the attorney can demonstrate a legal excuse for not accepting the brief, then it is for the head of the court to appoint an alternative attorney.

- B. The appointed attorney must prepare the submission and defend the accused, or be replaced by an appointed attorney, with the court imposing a fine⁵⁶ implemented by a memo written by the head of the court to the department of implementation, without violating the procedural rules of the court, in accordance with the Law of Lawyers⁵⁷. He shall be exempt from the fine if at any time it is proved that he was excused from attending the session in person or through a representative.

Article 145

The accused must appear in person in a trial of contention⁵⁸; the attendance only of his representative is not acceptable.

Article 146

The accused may present a written excuse if he cannot attend, and one of his relatives may present this report. If it is accepted by the court, another time is fixed for the trial, and the accused and others connected with the case are given notification.

Article 147

- A. The trial will take place when the two parties attend. If the accused has absconded or is absent without legal excuse, despite his having been informed, a trial will take place in his absence.

- B. If the accused does not attend and has not been notified in person, the trial will not take place until he has been notified in person.

⁵³ CPA Memorandum 3 signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003 added at Section 5, a right to be informed of a right to an attorney upon arrest and, at Section 8, a right to representation at detention and investigation court level. The English text gave the right to representation at the detention stage only to those accused of felonies. The Arabic text of the same Memorandum however gives the right to those accused of any crimes. CPA Regulation 1, section 3(2) says that in the case of divergence, the English text will prevail.

⁵⁴ this right was extended from felonies to all crimes by CPA Memorandum 3 Section 8(2) signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

⁵⁶ the words “of no more than 50 dinars” were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3 Section 4(e), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

⁵⁷ Law No. 173 of 1963

⁵⁸ [translator's note - trial in which both parties appear in person]

Article 148

If there are a number of accused and amongst them is one who has absconded or is absent, the trial of those who are present takes place, as does the trial of those absent, but the case of those who are present takes precedence over the case of those who are absent.

Article 149

- A. The trial of an absent accused or one who has absconded is conducted according to the guidelines for the conduct of trials where the accused is present.
- B. Notification of the in absentia judgement is given to the person against whom the judgement has been made. If the accused has absconded at the time of notification, notification is given as stipulated in Article 143.
- C. The court issues an arrest warrant against the person who has been sentenced in absentia to a penalty restricting his freedom, for a felony or misdemeanour.

Article 150

If the civil plaintiff abandons his claim, whether by his absence or in accordance with the provisions of Article 22, or through a request presented to the court, he is considered to have given up his right to a review of the civil case before the criminal court and the court considers the criminal case. It may imply from his absence that he has abandoned his complaint in accordance with Article 9.

Article 151

In the case of an accused who absconds after presenting his defence but before the issue or a verdict, without informing the court of any legal excuse, an arrest warrant is issued, requiring him to attend for delivery of the verdict.

SECTION 3 - COURT PROCEDURES

CHAPTER 1 - GENERAL PRINCIPLES IN THE TRIAL

Article 152

Trial sessions must be open unless the court decides that all or part should be held in private and not attended by anyone not connected with the cases, for reasons of security or maintaining decency. It may forbid the attendance of certain groups of people.

Article 153

The court and those entrusted with its administration may prohibit any individual from leaving the court room, and if someone leaves in violation of this prohibition, without the permission of the court, the court may rule immediately for detention for 24 hours or a fine not exceeding 3 dinars, with no right to appeal against this ruling. The court may however issue a pardon before the end of the session and retract the ruling issued.

Article 154

The court may prevent the parties and their representatives speaking at undue length or speaking outside the subject of the case, repeating statements, violating guidelines or making accusations against another party or a person outside the case who is unable to put forward a defence.

Article 155

- A. It is not permissible to try any accused who has not been referred to the court.
- B. If it becomes clear to the court before judgment on a case is made, that there are other persons linked to the offence, either as principals or as accessories, and procedures have not been taken against them, it may consider the case with regard to the accused present, and request that the investigative authorities take legal proceedings against the other persons or decide to suspend the case until the investigation has been completed.

Article 156

The accused attends the court room without restraint or handcuffs and the court must use necessary means to ensure the security of the court room.

Article 157

The court may, at any time whilst the case is being considered, order the release of the accused with or without bail unless he is accused of an offence punishable by death. It may order his arrest or detention following any release, stating the reasons for this in the order issued.

Article 158

The accused may not be removed from the court room during consideration of the case unless he violates the rules of the court, in which case procedures continue as if he were present. The court must keep him informed of the procedures which took place in his absence.

Article 159

- A. If a person commits a misdemeanour or infraction whilst in the court room, the court may evaluate the case against him at the time, suspending the initial case and making a ruling after listening to statements from a representative of the Public Prosecution, if present, and statements in defence of the person mentioned, or transferring him to an investigative judge after making a written record of the incident.
- B. If a felony is committed, the court makes a written record of the event and transfers the accused to an investigative judge for the necessary legal steps to be taken.

Article 160

- A. If the ruling on a criminal case is suspended, pending the result of the ruling in another criminal case, the ruling of the first must be suspended until the ruling on the second has been made.
- B. If it is proved that the accused is absent for reasons outside his control, for example because he is imprisoned or missing, the investigative judge or criminal court issues a ruling, according to the circumstances, ordering the suspension of criminal proceedings against him temporarily, and the suspension of any civil case until such a time as he returns or his fate becomes clear. The civil plaintiff in this case does not have the right to refer to the civil court.⁵⁹

Article 161

If the case is being reviewed by a judge whose place is taken by another judge, the second judge may base his judgement on procedures and investigations undertaken by his predecessor or he may repeat these procedures and investigations himself.

Article 162

The court may decide on the suspension of a case for a suitable period if necessitated by circumstances. It must inform the accused, other litigants and witnesses who have not yet testified that they are to attend the session when it resumes and the court will meet the cost of their expenses.

Article 163

The court may order that any investigatory procedure or procedures be taken, or that any person be ordered to hand over information, documents, or items, if that will assist the investigation. In the event of a refusal to hand over something in his possession, a person should be transferred to an investigative judge for legal procedures to be taken against him.

Article 164

The court orders that items seized be brought to the courtroom wherever possible, where the accused and other parties are able to see and note them.

Article 165

The court may proceed to conduct an investigation if it appears that this will assist in establishing the truth and should allow the litigants to attend the investigation.

Article 166

The court may appoint one or more experts in matters requiring their opinion and may permit the wages of the expert to be borne by the treasury as long as the price is not unreasonably high.

CHAPTER 2 - COURT PROCEDURES IN NON-SUMMARY CASES

Article 167

The trial begins with the summoning of the accused and other parties and the formal identification of the accused, and the transfer decision is then read. The court hears one at a time the testimony of the complainant, the statements of the civil plaintiff and the statements of the other⁶⁰ witnesses. The court orders the reading of the reports, investigations and other documents. The court then hears the statement of the accused, along with the speech and requests of the complainants, civil plaintiff, person who stands as the civil respondent and public prosecution.

⁵⁹ This sub-paragraph was added in accordance with Law No. 78 of 1984 (Ninth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code 23 of 1971), published in the Official Gazette, issue 3010 of 10 September 1984

⁶⁰ [i.e. 'non-defence' witnesses]

Article 168

- A. Before giving testimony each witness is asked to give his full name, profession, age, place of work and relationship to the parties. Before giving his testimony, he must swear that he will speak the truth and nothing but the truth.
- B. The witness gives his testimony orally and he may not be interrupted during its delivery. If he is unable to speak due to disability, the court will give him permission to write his statement. The court may ask any questions necessary in order to clarify the facts after completion of the testimony. The Public Prosecution, complainant, civilian plaintiff, a civil official and the accused may discuss the testimony ~~via the court~~⁶¹ and ask questions and request clarifications to establish the facts.
- C. It is permissible to remove the witness whilst the testimony of another witness is being heard and the witness may be confronted by another witness during the testimony.

Article 169

The testimony should be based on the facts which the witness is able to recall through one of his senses.

Article 170

The court may order that testimony, previously given in the written report collating the evidence or during the initial investigation or before it or any another criminal court, be heard in front of it, if the witness claims not to recall all or some of the facts to which he testified, or if the previous statement clarifies his current statement before the court. The court and other parties may discuss all of this.

Article 171

The court may hear the testimony of anyone who attends the trial and anyone who puts himself forward with information. It may summon any person to attend to deliver his testimony if it is considered that this testimony will help establish the truth.

Article 172

If the witness does not appear or if his testimony cannot be heard because he has died, is unable to speak or is no longer qualified to testify or because his whereabouts are unknown or if his appearance before the court would cause delay or exorbitant expense, the court may decide to hear testimony previously given in the written record of the collection of evidence or during the initial investigation, or in front of another criminal court in the same case. This testimony will be treated as though it were given before the court.

Article 173

If the witness is excused due to illness, or any other reason for his inability to attend, from giving his testimony, the court, after informing the parties, may delegate a member of the court, an investigative judge or misdemeanour judge, to travel to the witness's location to hear the witness and send a written report to the court.

⁶¹ the words "via the court" were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3 Section 4(f), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

The parties may attend in person or through representatives and direct the questions they think appropriate. If, after the transfer or sending of a judge to the location of the witness, the reason is deemed not to be valid, a penalty may be imposed as prescribed by law for failure to attend.

Article 174

- A. If the witness does not attend, the court may, despite his prior notification, permit that he be re-summoned to attend or it may issue an arrest warrant against him for attendance to deliver the testimony and the witness may be given a penalty as prescribed by law for not attending.
- B. If the witness attends the court before the trial has been completed and it becomes clear that he has an acceptable excuse for being late, the court may retract the judgement issued against him.

Article 175

The court may, either on its own or at the request of the parties, request discussion of a testimony or return to its discussion and seek clarification of what the witness has said in order to establish the facts.

Article 176

If the witness refuses to swear the oath or give testimony, other than in cases where this is permissible by law, the court may issue a sentence against him as prescribed by law for refusal to testify and may order the reading of his previous statement which should then be treated as a testimony which was given in front of the court.

Article 177

An appeal by cassation may be made before the Felony Court against judgements made against witnesses by the Court of Misdemeanours in accordance with legally prescribed guidelines. The decision will be final. It is also permissible to appeal against these judgements to the Court of Cassation if they are issued by the Felony Court. The decision of the Court of Cassation is final. It will be sufficient in these cases to send a written record of the session and a copy of the judgements issued against the witness during the appeal review.

Article 178

Provisions of section 2 of part 4, book 2 should be applied as far as possible when hearing witness testimony in court.⁶²

Article 179

The court may ask the accused any questions considered appropriate to establish the truth before or after issuing a charge against him.⁶³

⁶² Articles 58 to 68 dealing with the process by which witnesses are heard by the investigative judge

⁶³ The sentence, "A refusal to answer will be considered as evidence against the accused." was purportedly deleted by CPA Memorandum 3 Section 4(g), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003. However the revised version of CPA Memorandum 3 (which is the version on the CPA archive website at <http://www.cpa-iraq.org/regulations/index.html>), signed on 27 June 2004 and never published in the Official Gazette is silent on this provision and therefore does not contain this deletion. The reason for the silence

Article 180

If the accused refuses to answer questions directed to him or if his answers are contradictory or contradict his previous statements, the court may order the reading and hearing of the accused's earlier answers and statements.

Article 181

- A. If the complainant withdraws the complaint or the court considers that the complaint has been withdrawn in accordance with the provisions of Article 150 and if the offence is one in which conciliation is permissible without a court agreement, the complaint is considered as rejected.
- B. If, after taking steps to clarify the situation as described in the Articles above, it becomes clear to the court that the evidence does not point to the accused having committed the offence with which he is charged, his discharge is ordered.
- C. If it appears to the court, after the aforementioned steps have been taken, that the evidence indicates that the accused has committed the offence being considered, then he is charged as appropriate, the charge is read to him and clarified, and he is asked to enter a plea.
- D. If the accused confesses to the charge against him and the court is satisfied of the truth of his confession and that he understands its implications, then the court listens to his defence and issues a judgement in the case without any requirement for further evidence. If he denies the charge or does not offer a defence, if he requests a trial or if the court considers that his confession is confused, or that he does not understand the consequences or if the offence is punishable by death then the case goes to trial, defence witnesses are heard and the remaining evidence in his defence is heard, unless the court finds it to be an unjustified attempt to impede the investigation or to mislead the court. When this has been completed, the commentary of the other parties, the Public Prosecution, and the defence of the accused are heard. The end of the trial is then announced, and the court issues its verdict in the same session or in another session held soon afterwards.
- E. The accused should be the last to speak in the judicial investigation or trial.

Article 182

- A. If, after the trial has been conducted as above, the court is satisfied⁶⁴ that the accused committed the offence of which he is accused, it issues a verdict of guilty and rules on the penalty to be applied.
- B. If the court is satisfied that the accused did not commit the offence of which he is accused or that the action in question is not a criminal offence, a verdict of not guilty is issued.
- C. If it becomes clear to the court that there is insufficient evidence to condemn him the in the revised Memorandum 3 would appear to be that the original sentence actually read "A refusal to answer will NOT be considered as evidence against the accused"

⁶⁴ The word 'satisfied' (i'qtinaiha) comes from the root qana'a and means 'satisfied so that it is sure' or 'convinced'

charge is dropped and he is discharged.⁶⁵

D. If it becomes clear to the court that the accused is not legally responsible for his actions the court issues a judgment of diminished responsibility and follows the steps stipulated by law.⁶⁶

E. A detainee is released when a verdict of not-guilty, diminished responsibility, release or rejection of the complaint is issued, as long as there is no other legal reason for his detention.

CHAPTER 3 - SEIZURE OF DEFENDANT'S ASSETS

Article 183

A. The investigative judge and the court may seize the assets of a person accused of committing a felony involving movable or immovable property. The seizure will include all funds that were earned via these assets or which have been received as compensation for them. Items which may not otherwise be seized in accordance with the law may be seized if it is proven that they were obtained as a consequence of an offence.

B. The court, when issuing a sentence in absentia against a person accused of a felony, must order seizure of assets if not previously seized.⁶⁷

Article 184⁶⁸

A. The investigative judge and the court may⁶⁹, based on a request from the Public Prosecution or the appropriate administrative party, order precautionary seizure of assets immediately, if the action on which it is based forms an offence related to the external or internal security of the state or is an offence against the rights or property of the state, including assets considered to be public assets or those connected to public welfare. The precautionary seizure process may be ordered by the competent Judicial Authority directly when necessary even though no such request might have been made.

B. In the circumstances indicated in sub-paragraph A, it is permissible to request seizure of assets before a case has been lodged, when it is lodged, or at any stage of the criminal case, up to the point where a definitive verdict has been given.

C. All moveable and immovable assets of the accused which are legally liable to seizure, are subject to seizure, whether in his possession and subject to his control or whether

⁶⁵ note Court of Cassation Decision No. 144 of 2007 to the effect that a confession which was subsequently withdrawn and which was contradicted by other evidence was insufficient evidence

⁶⁶ see Articles 230 to 232

⁶⁷ The text of sub-paragraph (B) has been amended in accordance with Article 1 of Law No. 193 of 1975 (Fourth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code, No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2504 of 15 December 1975

⁶⁸ This text replaces the repealed original text of Article 184 in accordance with the Article 2 of Law No. 193 of 1975 (Fourth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code, No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2504 of 15 December 1975

possession or control have been transferred to another party. The seizure includes all assets if the rights and damages resulting from the offence are unlimited. If they are, or subsequently become limited, a seizure order or amendment is issued to guarantee that the state recovers only the rights and damages to which it is entitled, no more.

Article 185⁷⁰

- A. If the seizure is put in place before the complaint is lodged, the person who requested the seizure must lodge his complaint within 3 months of the decision to make the seizure.
- B. The accused whose assets have been seized, the person who holds the seized assets, and the person who claims rights over the seized assets, may challenge the decision of seizure with the judicial authority which issued it, within 8 days from the date of notification of the seizure order or from the date on which they became aware of it.
- C. If the party requesting the seizure does not submit the complaint against the person whose assets have been seized within the period specified in sub-paragraph A the seizure order is cancelled and all resulting legal effects are cancelled.
- D. If the complaint is submitted within the time limit specified in sub-paragraph A the judicial authorities to whom the criminal case passes may decide to leave the seizure order in place or to amend it or to cancel it, depending on the facts of the case and the case which has been made against the seizure.

Article 186⁷¹

- A. The seizure in progress is considered, under the terms of Articles 183, 184 and 185, a precautionary seizure and remains in place during procedures to contest it; the assets seized and claims over them are administered under civil law so long as it does not conflict with the provisions of the paragraphs above.
- B. If the criminal case ends for any legal reason, before a judgment has been issued, the seizure remains current in accordance with the provisions of Articles 184 and 185, and the administrative party concerned must establish a legal case on the rights and damages covered by the criminal case within three months of notification of the end of the criminal case. In the case of failure to comply with this, the seizure order is cancelled and the seized property returned to its owner.
- C. If a verdict of guilty is issued against the accused, the assets remain seized and are transferred to a state of implementational seizure once the judgment is definitive.
- D. If a verdict of not guilty or diminished responsibility is reached, or if an order is issued to discharge the accused or throw out the complaint, once this decision is final the seizure is cancelled and the assets restored to the owner even if this is not stipulated in the court's ruling.

⁷⁰ This text replaces the repealed original text of Article 185 in accordance with Article 2 of Law No. 193 of 1975 (Fourth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code, No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2504 of 15 December 1975

⁷¹ This text replaces the repealed original text of Article 186 in accordance with Article 2 of Law No. 193 of 1975 (Fourth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2504 of 15 December 1975

CHAPTER 4 - CHARGE

Article 187

- A. The charge is written down on a special piece of paper in the name of the judge issuing it, with his position and includes the name of the accused, his identity details, the place and time of commission of the offence and a legal description of the offence and the name of the victim or of the item against which the offence was committed, the way in which it was committed and the legal paragraphs which apply. The paper is dated and signed by the judge or head of the court.
- B. In setting out the description for the offence, the court is not restricted to the definition in the arrest warrant or summons or transfer decision.

Article 188

- A. One charge is made for each offence ascribed to a particular individual.
- B. One charge is made for multiple offences as stipulated in sub-paragraph 132(A).
- C. One charge is made for each connected offence as stipulated in sub-paragraph 132(B).
- D. It is permissible to make one charge against all the perpetrators of one offence.
- E. There will be a trial for each charge.
- F. The trial will take place as if for a single case under the circumstances stipulated in Articles 132 and 133.

Article 189

- A. If the accused is accused of treachery or embezzlement of public funds, it is sufficient in the charge to state the sums involved in the offence without giving details or dates of the appropriation.
- B. The court notifies the accused of any change or amendment to the charge.

Article 190

- A. If it becomes clear that the accused is accused of an offence punishable by a more severe penalty than that with which he has been charged, or if there is a difference between the descriptions given in the charge and the accusation, the charge must be withdrawn and a new charge issued.
- B. The court notifies the accused of all changes and amendments made to the charge in accordance with sub-paragraph A and grants a period of time for the defence to challenge this new charge if this is requested.
- C. A decision to withdraw the charge is organized along the same lines as if a not guilty verdict had been issued.

Article 191

If the accused is charged with an offence consisting of a number of actions, and it subsequently appears that the accused committed only part of the offence, the court completes the trial and issues a verdict without the need for a new charge to be issued.

Article 192

If it appears that the accused has committed a minor offence which has no connection with the offence with which he has been charged the court completes the trial and issues the verdict without the need for a new charge; an attempted offence is considered a minor offence.

Article 193

Material negligence or error does not nullify the charge provided that it does not alter its legal character and does not affect the accused's defence.

CHAPTER 5 - CONCILIATION

Article 194

Conciliation is acceptable by decision of the investigative judge or court if requested by the victim or the person representing him legally in the case. Action on the complaint will be suspended in accordance with the provisions laid out in the following paragraphs.

Article 195

- A. If the offence indicated in Article 194 is punishable by a term of detention of a year or less or by a fine, conciliation is acceptable without reference to the judge or court.
- B. If the offence is punishable by a period of detention exceeding a year, conciliation is only possible through reference to the judge or court.
- C. Conciliation is acceptable through the agreement of the court or judge in offences of threats, damage, spoiling or sabotage of property if they are punishable by a period of detention not exceeding a year.

Article 196

- A. The request of conciliation with an accused is not applicable to another accused.
- B. Conciliation is not acceptable if accompanied by conditions.

Article 197

- A. A request for conciliation will be accepted at all stages of investigation and trial up to the issue of the verdict.
- B. If legal conditions in the request for conciliation are fulfilled, the investigative judge or court will issue a ruling on acceptance and release the accused if detained.

Article 198

The decision announcing the acceptance of conciliation has the same effect as a verdict of not guilty.

CHAPTER 6 - CESSATION OF CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS

Article 199

- A. The Chief Prosecutor may⁷² request that the Court of Cassation put an end to the procedures of examination or trial, either temporarily or permanently, in any case up to the point of the issue of the final verdict, if there is a reason justifying this action.
- B. The request must include the justification and, when submitted to the Court of Cassation, the papers of the court are requested, and the investigative judge or court must send them for examination on the case.
- C. The Court of Cassation checks the request and decides whether to accept it and suspend proceedings permanently or temporarily for a period not exceeding three years, if it finds justification. If there is no justification, the request will be refused.
- D. After the Court of Cassation has issued its decision, the file is returned and a copy of the decision is sent to the Director of Public Prosecutions.
- E. If the decision stipulates a suspension of proceedings, the investigative judge or court must release the accused if he is detained. The issue of this decision will not prejudice the right of the judicial authorities or court to confiscate items, the possession of which is illegal.
- F. The decision to suspend proceedings temporarily may be converted to one of permanent suspension in accordance with the provisions stipulated in this section.

Article 200

- A. The investigation and trial will resume after the end of a period of temporary suspension from the point where they stopped.
- B. The decision to suspend proceedings permanently has the same legal effect as a not guilty verdict, although it does not prejudice potential damages from a civil case raised, or the payment of compensation.

CHAPTER 7 - TRIALS IN SUMMARY CASES

Sub-chapter 1 - Trial and Ruling

Article 201

The provisions and procedures for trials in non-summary cases are followed, as far as possible, in trials for summary cases subject to the following paragraphs.

Article 202

If it is clear to the Misdemeanour Court that the infraction being ruled upon is liable to a penalty of detention or if a request for compensation or return of property has been submitted, it must set a date for a session to review the case and give notice to the accused, other litigants and witnesses to attend.

⁷² the words “based on permission from the Minister of Justice” were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3 Section 4(i), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

Article 203

- A. The process of a [summary] trial entails the court hearing the testimony of the complainant or civil plaintiff, testimony of the witnesses, reading reports, then hearing a statement from the accused, if in attendance, without any charge being made, and recording a written summary of this, thus covering all aspects of the case.
- B. If the court is satisfied⁷³, after taking the steps described in sub-paragraph A, that the accused committed the offence of which he is accused, it issues a guilty verdict and rules on the penalty to be imposed.
- C. If the court is satisfied that the accused did not commit the offence of which he is accused, or if there is insufficient evidence for conviction, or if the action which was committed is not a criminal offence, a ruling is made that the accused be released.

Article 204

- A. In cases of infractions, transferred in summary form, if the court finds that the offence of which the accused is accused is a misdemeanour, it must review the case either in summary or non-summary form with regard to the provisions of sub-paragraph A of Article 134 or return it to the investigative judge for a preliminary investigation, in accordance with the basic facts. If the court finds that it is a felony, it must return the case to the investigative judge for investigation as stated above.
- B. The court may review, in non summary form, a case of misdemeanour transferred to it in summary form or may review, in summary form, a case which has been transferred to it in non-summary form, with regard to the provisions of sub-paragraph A of Article 134.
- C. If the court reviews a case of misdemeanour in summary form, it may not give a judgment exceeding the maximum penalty for an infraction as stipulated in the Penal Code.

Sub-Chapter 2 – Penal Order

Article 205

- A. If the court finds, from examination of the case papers, that the infraction is not liable to a sentence of detention, and a request for compensation or return of property has not been submitted, and the action of the accused is proven, it may issue a penal order for a fine or other penalty without trial.⁷⁴
- B. If it is clear to the court that there is insufficient evidence to prove that the accused committed the action of which he is accused, or that the law does not provide for a penalty, it issues an order of discharge.

Article 206

The penal order or discharge order is issued in writing and the accused is notified of the order, in accordance with basic principles.

⁷³ The word ‘satisfied’ (i’qtinaiha) comes from the root qana’a and means ‘satisfied so that it is sure’ or ‘convinced’

⁷⁴ a ‘penal order’ is the determinative final decision of the investigation judge in a minor infraction case as set out in Article 205

Article 207

The accused may contest the penal order by a petition submitted to the court within 7 days of the date of notification and the court will appoint a date for trial and notify the accused in accordance with basic principles.

Article 208

- A. If the contesting party attends the session, and the contestation was submitted within the legal time limit, the court will conduct a trial in accordance with the paragraphs above and will issue a verdict on the case in accordance with the provisions of the law, with the condition that the penalty against the accused shall be no more severe, and the verdict will be subject to appeal through legal methods.
- B. If the contesting party does not attend the session, or it is clear that the contestation was submitted after the legal time limit, the court will reject it.

Article 209

If there are a number of persons against whom a penal order has been issued, and only some of them contest it, the provisions of contestation apply only to those who have contested the order.

Article 210

Article 211

When the penal order is executed, the accused may submit a defence that he retains the right of contestation because he was not notified in accordance with basic principles. In this case his defence is submitted as a petition to the court, which may refuse it if it finds that the grounds on which it is based are untrue. If it is accepted, the penal order will not be executed and a date will be set for a session to review the case in accordance with previous proceedings.

CHAPTER EIGHT – JUDGMENT AND REASONS

Sub-Chapter One - The reasons

Article 212

The court is not permitted, in its ruling, to rely upon a piece of evidence which has not been brought up for discussion or referred to during the hearing, nor is it permitted to rely on a piece of paper given to it by a litigant without the rest of the litigants seeing it. The judge cannot give a ruling on the basis of his personal knowledge.

Article 213

- A. The court's verdict in a case is based on the extent to which it is satisfied⁷⁵ by the evidence⁷⁶ presented during any stage of the inquiry or the hearing. Evidence includes admission reports, witness statements, written records of an investigation, other official discoveries, reports of experts and technicians, background information⁷⁷ and other legally established evidence.
- B. One testimony is not sufficient for a ruling if it is not corroborated by background information⁷⁸ or other convincing evidence or an admission from the accused. The exception to this rule is if the law specifies a particular way of proving a case, which must be followed.
- C. The court can accept an admission only if it is satisfied with it⁷⁹.

Article 214

The court must decide that the witness is not fit to give testimony if it becomes clear he is unable to remember details of the event or that he is not fully aware of the of value of the testimony he is giving due to his age or his physical or psychological state.

Article 215

The court has absolute authority in evaluating the testimony. It can either fully accept it or reject it, accept the statements given by the witness during the police investigation or during reports from the initial [judicial] investigation⁸⁰ or given in front of another court in the same case, or completely reject the witness' statements.

Article 216

The court may accept the statement of a dying victim as evidence relating to the offence and its perpetrator or any other related matter.

Article 217

- A. The court has absolute authority in evaluating the accused's admission and acting upon it whether it was given in front of the court, in front of the investigative judge, during other court hearing of the same case or in another case, even if the witness subsequently withdraws his statement.⁸¹ The court can accept his admission to the [judicial] investigator if there is enough evidence to convince it that the investigator did not have sufficient time to present the accused to the [investigative] judge so that his admission could be recorded.

⁷⁵ The word 'satisfied' (i'qtinaiha) comes from the root qana'a and means 'satisfied so that it is sure' or 'convinced'

⁷⁶ al-adhilha is the total evidence

⁷⁷ qarina is background information

⁷⁸ qarina is background information

⁷⁹ the words "and if there is no other evidence which proves it to be a lie" were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3 Section 4(j), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

⁸⁰ see Articles 51 to 86

⁸¹ note Court of Cassation Decision No. 144 of 2007 to the effect that a confession which was subsequently withdrawn and which was contradicted by other evidence was insufficient evidence

B. Admissions may not be accepted if the conditions stipulated in A are not present.

Article 218

It is stipulated that an admission must not have been extracted by coercion.⁸²

Article 219

It is permissible for the court to divide the admission up, accept the part which it believes to be correct and reject the rest. It is not however permissible to interpret the admission or divide it into parts if it is the only piece of evidence in the case.

Article 220

- A. Reports of investigations and of the collating of evidence, and all the details in them about procedures of disclosure, searching, and other official reports, are regarded as elements of proof to be taken into consideration by the court. The litigation can discuss them or prove the opposite.
- B. The court must treat events written down by the officials in their reports as part of their official duties as evidence which corroborates their statement, provided they wrote them when they occurred or not long afterwards.

Article 221⁸³

Sub-Chapter 2 - The ruling

Article 222

Everything that takes place in the court is written up in a report. The judge or the chief justice signs all its pages. The report must include the date of each hearing, whether it was public or closed, the names of the judge or judges who considered the case, the clerk, the representative of the Public Prosecution, the names of the accused, and other members of accused's team, the names of the witnesses, a report on the papers which were read out, the requests made, the procedures concluded, a summary of rulings, and everything else that occurred during the trial.

Article 223

- A. The court retires before giving its ruling. After it has formulated the ruling, the hearing is resumed publicly. The ruling is read out to the accused or its contents are made clear to him.

⁸² the words "whether it be physical or moral, a promise or a threat. Nevertheless, if there is no causal link between the coercion and the admission or if the admission is corroborated by other evidence which convinces the court that it is true or which has led to uncovering a certain truth, then the court may accept it" were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(k), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

⁸³ This Article which read "The minutes, reports, and official letters written by officials and employees dealing with an infraction are regarded as proof of the events they contain. The court may rely on these as its reason for its ruling in the infraction. It is not however obliged to investigate their veracity. The parties nevertheless can prove that they are true." was suspended by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(l), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

- B. If the verdict is guilty, then the court must issue another ruling at the same hearing with the penalty and explain them both.

Article 224

- A. The ruling should contain the name of the judge or judges who have issued it, the accused, the other parties and a representative of the Public Prosecution, a description of the offence he is accused of perpetrating, the paragraph of law which applies, the reasons for the court's ruling and the reasons for the level of sentence passed. The ruling on the penalty must contain the principal and subsidiary penalty penalties impose by the court; the amount of compensation for which the court has ruled the accused or person, if any, taking civil liability to be liable; or the court's decision on the return, confiscation or destruction of assets or items claimed. The judge or the court's panel signs and dates every ruling and seals them with the seal of the court.
- B. Rulings are issued on the basis of consensus or a majority of them. All those dissenting from the majority decision must explain their views in writing.
- C. Any person disagreeing with the guilty ruling must still express his opinion on the most appropriate penalty for the offence on which a guilty ruling has been made.
- D. If the court issues a death sentence, it must explain to the person given the sentence that his case papers will be sent automatically to the Court of Cassation for review. He may also appeal against the ruling at the Court of Cassation within 30 days, starting from the day after the ruling has been issued.
- E. The term subsidiary penalties mentioned in this law means consequent and supplementary penalties, and the precautionary measures stipulated in the Penal Code.

Article 225

The court is not permitted to retract, alter or change a ruling it has issued except to correct a material error. This must be noted down in the margin and considered a part of the ruling.

Article 226

The case file must include the original ruling issued. When requested, a photocopy of it must be given to the accused.

CHAPTER NINE - AUTHORITATIVENESS OF PROVISIONS AND DECREES

Article 227

- A. A final criminal verdict of guilty or not guilty is proof of the event to which the offence relates, ascribing it to its perpetrator and its legal status.
- B. A decision from the Court of Cassation or the investigative judge to discharge an accused has the force of a not guilty verdict once it has been made absolute.
- C. The civil court is not bound by the verdict or absolute penal decision in matters and facts on which no ruling has been made or on which the ruling made was not necessary.

Article 228

The provisions of Article 227 also apply to the penal order.

Article 229

A verdict issued without the involvement of the criminal court cannot be used in the criminal court as an argument in relation to the veracity of the events forming the offence or its legal description or proof that the accused perpetrated the offence.

SECTION 4 - PROCEEDINGS AGAINST THOSE WITH DIMINISHED RESPONSIBILITY

CHAPTER ONE - INSANE PERSONS

Article 230

If it appears during an investigation or proceedings, that the accused is not able to conduct his own defence on the grounds of mental illness, or if the situation requires an examination of his mental faculties in order to test his criminal responsibility, the investigation or court proceedings are suspended, by decision of the investigative judge, or court, and, if he has been charged with an offence for which he cannot be released on bail, he is placed under supervision in a government health institution, capable of treating mental illness. For other offences, however, he is placed in a government, or non-government health institution, at his expense on the request of whoever is acting on his behalf in law, or at the expense of his family, on payment of a surety by a guarantor. A specialist government medical committee is charged with carrying out an examination and presenting a report on the state of his mental health.

Article 231

If it appears from the report of the committee referred to in Article 230 that the accused is not able to present his own defence, the investigation is postponed until he has sufficient mental awareness to make his own defence, and he is placed under the supervision of a government health institution if he is accused of an offence for which he cannot be released on bail. But in the case of other offences, he can be handed over to one his relatives on a surety from a guarantor, on condition that a commitment is made that he should receive treatment in Iraq, or elsewhere.

Article 232

If it appears from the decision of the medical committee that the accused was not criminally responsible owing to mental illness at the time the offence was committed, the judge will decide diminished responsibility and the court will issue a judgment of diminished responsibility and will take whatever action is necessary for handing him over to one of his relatives, on payment of a guarantee, to undergo whatever treatment is necessary.

Article 236

It is for the investigative judge and the court considering the case of a juvenile in the Court of Misdemeanours and the Court of Felonies to ask for help from organizations such as the official health and social services, and from experts and doctors, to investigate the social, medical, dental, psychological and environmental situation of the juvenile, and the reasons which might have driven him to commit the offence, in cognisance of the content of other laws, which make compulsory referral of a juvenile to the competent authorities for the purpose given.

Article 237

- A. A juvenile is not detained for an infraction, but he can be detained on a misdemeanour or felony for the purpose of investigating him, studying his personality, or in the event that he cannot be released on bail. However, if he is accused of an offence punishable by death, and he is more than ten years old, then detention is mandatory.

- B. The objection by the person sentenced is to be submitted in a petition either directly to the court or to any police station or in a written report regulated by the court or in any police station after asking the person sentenced immediately after his arrest or after giving himself up whether he wants to object to the verdict and if he wants to make a written record of the reasons for his objection. If he does not want to do so, then this is stated in the written report.

Article 244

- A. If the person sentenced gives himself up or is arrested and the objection procedures are completed within the period specified in Article 243, the court will decide to detain him and set a date for the objection to be reviewed and then notify him and those concerned in accordance with the rules, The court may decide to release him on bail unless the offence for which he is sentenced does not permit him to be released on bail.
- B. The period the sentenced person spends in detention will be taken into account.
- C. If the sentence issued is a fine and the person convicted pays it to the court or to the police station then he is released and the aforementioned procedure is to be followed in submitting his objection.

Article 245

- A. If the objection is submitted within the time limit and the objector does not attend any of the court objection sessions without legitimate excuse, having been notified according to the rules, or if he absconds, the court will decide to reject the objection and it will be a judgment in absentia and the decision to reject it will be notified in accordance with the rules with the status of a judgment in the presence of the parties which cannot be appealed against except by other legal means.
- B. If the objection is submitted after its time limit has elapsed, the court will decide to reject it formally without any need to notify the objector of the decision to reject it and it is considered a judgment in absentia with the status of a judgment in the presence of the parties which cannot be appealed against except by other legal means.
- C. If the objector attends and the objection is submitted within its legal time limit, the court will decide to accept it and examine the case again in the light of the objection and will issue its judgment with the support of the judgment in absentia or will amend it or cancel it, on condition that it will be not judged more harshly than the sentence imposed in absentia.
- D. The exception to paragraphs A and B is in the case of the death sentence or a sentence of life imprisonment.

Article 246

- A. The submission of an objection results in the suspension of the examination into the appeal against judgment in absentia submitted to the Court of Felonies or to the Court of Cassation from the Public Prosecution or other accused or anyone connected with the case against the sentence which is issued in the objection trial.
- B. Appeal against the judgment issued as a result of the objection trial is permissible by other appeal methods prescribed by law.
- C. If there is an appeal against the judgment to reject the objection in accordance with sub-paragraph A of Article 245, this appeal will include this judgment and the judgment in absentia against which the objection is being made, even if this is not made clear in the appeal petition. An appeal by the complainant is restricted to whichever of the two he has requested. However, an appeal by the accused includes both criminal and civil cases, unless there has been a restriction to just one of them.
- B. If an appeal was submitted by the Public Prosecution, it can reverse a judgment regarding all the persons convicted, but if it was submitted by only one of those convicted, the judgment will only be reversed in respect of that person, unless the reason on which the appeal is based also apply to the other convicted persons. In that situation the decision can be reversed with regard to all of them.
- C. In the process of cassation over an appeal, steps are taken to ensure that the appellant is not prejudiced by the fact that an appeal is lodged, unless the judgment against which an appeal has been made is evidence of the fact that the law has been violated.

Article 252

- A. The appeal takes place by means of a petition presented by the petitioner, or his legal representative, to the criminal court which issued the judgment, to any other criminal court, or directly to the Court of Cassation, within a period of thirty days, starting from the day after the judgment was issued, if in the presence of the parties, or from the date it was regarded as having the status of being issued in the presence of the parties, if it was in absentia.

If the judgment in absentia involving compensation or legal attorney fees is executed, the court can subsequently decide to return all or part of the acquired funds on holding the trial with the accused present.

Article 255

In accordance with Article 254, the Court of Cassation sends the case file to the Chief Prosecutor's Office, immediately upon its receipt together with the grounds for the appeal, petitions and statements received from the parties involved in the case, presenting their demands and queries about the judgment or decision within 20 days of their receipt.

- B. The General Board at the Court of Cassation specializes in reviewing cases where there is a death sentence and cases which are dealt with directly by the President of the Court of Cassation, or in accordance with a proposal from the board stipulated in sub-paragraph (A) for referring the case. This applies also to cassation for other cases stipulated in the law.

Article 258

- A. If it appears to the Court of Cassation that an appeal against a judgment or decision issued by the criminal court has not been presented within the period specified in law, it will confirm its formal rejection.
- B. It is up to the Court of Cassation to summon the accused, the plaintiff, the civil plaintiff or person with civil liability (or both), or the representative of the Public Prosecution to hear their statements or for any purpose it requires in order to obtain the truth.

given notification.

A new verdict is issued for whole or part of the case.

Article 263

- A. If the case is returned for a review of the sentence, it must be reviewed by the same judge or judicial body which issued the verdict unless there is a good reason.
- B. If the court issues a verdict following the review, the case is then submitted to the Court of Cassation, and the judicial body must ratify the decision if it finds it to be in accordance with the law, or must make the penalty more lenient. If it finds that a guilty verdict should be issued against the accused or that the penalty must be of increased severity, the case is transferred to the Public Body of the Court of Cassation and it is for this body to issue the guilty ruling or the penalty to be imposed or to approve the judgment previously issued by the court.

- C. The provisions of sub-paragraph C of Article 249 are considered on the question of decisions which cannot be appealed.
- D. The Felony Court, in the cases laid out in this paragraph, has authority prescribed by the Court of Cassation in applying these provisions and decisions, and its decisions in these cases will be final.

SECTION 3 - CORRECTION OF THE CASSATION DECISION

Article 266

- A. The Public Prosecution, the convicted person and all others connected with a criminal case may request the correction of a legal error in the decision issued by the Court of Cassation, provided the request is submitted within 30 days, counted from the date a convicted, imprisoned or detained person is notified of the cassation decision or, otherwise, from the date the court dealing with the case receives the case documentation from the Court of Cassation.
- B. The request is submitted directly to the Court of Cassation, or through the court, or prison or centre administration, if the convicted person is already in prison or detained.

Article 267

A request for correction is not accepted for the following decisions:

- A. A decision for reversal and re-trial or a second judicial investigation;
- B. A decision issued for the return of case documentation for review of the judgment;
- C. A decision or judgment issued by the Court of Cassation General Board.⁹¹

Article 268

- A. The Penalties Board reviews requests for correcting the decisions it has issued, provided that the President of the Court of Cassation has not been requested to do so by the General Board.⁹²
- B. Board reviewing the request for correction considers that the request does not comply with legal conditions, it will decide to reject it, or to accept it and correct the decision of cassation, either in full or in part.

Article 269

- A. A request for correction can only be accepted on one occasion.

⁹¹ This sub-paragraph was added in accordance with Paragraph 2 of Law No. 91 of 1976 (Fifth amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2545 of 23 August 1986

⁹² This sub-paragraph was added in accordance with Paragraph 2 of Law 91 of 1976 (5th amendment of the Law on Principles of Criminal Trials No.23/1971) published in the Official Gazette, issue 2545 of 23 August 1976

B. Decisions to turn down or accept a request for correction cannot be corrected after issue.

Section 4 - Re-trial

Article 270

A re-trial can be requested for a case which resulted in a sentence or imposition of penalties for a felony or misdemeanour under the following circumstances:

- A. If the accused was convicted of murder and the person for whose murder he was convicted is found alive;
- B. If a person was convicted of an offence and a judgment was later issued against another person for committing the same offence since one of the two judgments must be against a person innocent of the offence;
- C. If a person is convicted on the basis of the testimony of an expert or the opinion of a specialist, or document, and later a definitive judgment is issued against the witness or expert on the basis of having borne false witness, or the document is proven to be a forgery;
- D. If after the judgment is issued, facts come to light, or documents are presented which were not known at the time of the trial, and these prove the innocence of the convicted person.
- E. If the judgment was based on a judgment which was quashed or annulled by lawful means.
- F. If a guilty or not guilty judgment, or a final decision for discharge was issued on the basis of a criminal act, either separate or related to the original offence;
- G. If for any lawful reason the offence or sentence no longer apply to the accused.

Article 271

A request for a re-trial is submitted to the Public Prosecution by the person convicted, or whoever represents him in law. If the person convicted has died the request can be submitted by his wife or one of his relatives, but the request must clearly explain the ground on which it is based and be accompanied by supporting documentation.

Article 272

The Public Prosecution will carry out an examination of the grounds supporting the request and will check the case documentation. He then submits the papers, together with his assessment, to the Court of Cassation as quickly as possible.

Article 273

The request for a re-trial can only halt implementation of a sentence if it was in respect of the death penalty.

Article 274

The Court of Cassation reviews the request by carrying out an inspection of the case documentation and it is up to the court to undertake whatever inquiries and questioning of witnesses it considers necessary.

Article 275

If the Court of Cassation finds that the request for a re-trial fails to satisfy the necessary legal conditions, it will decide to turn it down. If it finds the request justified, it will return the documentation to the court which issued the judgment, or to the court which has taken its place, together with its decision for a re-trial.

Article 276

The trial takes place on the basis of the requested re-trial referred back to it, and if it decides there is no just cause to interfere with the original judgment, it issues a decision accordingly; if however it decides on annulment, either total or partial, and that the person convicted is not guilty, it will issue a new judgment, but this will not be more severe in its sentence than the previous one. Its judgment will be in accordance with legal procedures.

Article 277

If the person convicted has died, or if he dies after the request has been submitted, the court continues with the measures for a re-trial and appoints someone to be responsible for the defence, if the person who requested the re-trial had not already appointed someone to represent his defence. The court then issues its decision not to interfere with the original judgment, or for annulment, either in full or in part, or for a declaration of not guilty on the part of the deceased. Its decision will be in accordance with legal procedures.

Article 278

Following the annulment of a judgment, all its civil or criminal consequences are removed, either in total or in part, and the amount of any fine or compensation is returned together with any impounded or confiscated property. If such items are no longer present, their value is paid out, unless the confiscation was not a legal duty.

Article 279

If the request for a re-trial is turned down, or if a decision is issued for non-interference with the original judgment, the request cannot be submitted for a second time, on exactly the same grounds as were used in the first request.

BOOK FIVE - IMPLEMENTATION

SECTION 1 – GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Article 280

It is not possible to execute penalties and measures declared by law for any crime unless an executory judgment is issued by a competent court.

Article 281

The court must issue a judgment having a custodial penalty or measure and should send the convict to penitentiary or prison, according to its decision, along with the memorandum of detention or imprisonment including the measure or penalty which the convict is sentenced with, the start date of executing the decision, the legal article under which he/she was convicted and the period that the convict had spent as an arrested or detained individual. A copy of the memorandum should be sent to the prosecution to follow up the execution of the decision according to the law.

Article 282

Criminal judgments should be executed in the presence of the accused, soon after being issued, or should be considered as in presence judgment, with the exemption of death penalty which should not be executed unless in accordance to the rules stated in the relevant section of this law as well as judgments of imprisonment issued against violations where they should not be executed unless after getting the final degree provided that the convict should present a guarantor of his presence in order to execute the imprisonment penalty whenever it is required, otherwise the penalty will be executed soon against the convict.

- C. If a report issued by a competent medical committee proves that the convict suffers from mental disability, the court has to decide to put the convict under guardianship in one of the governmental health institutions for mental diseases until the term of penalty ends. If the convict could recover before the term of penalty ends, he/she should be sent back to the prison or institution to finish the term of his penalty where the period which he/she spent under guardianship in the health institution should be excluded from the term of his penalty.

Article 284

The detained could be released if the issued judgment comprises innocence, reconciliation, release, non-responsibility or a non-custodial penalty and if he/she had spent the sentenced penalty period in arrest and detention.

- B. The death sentence is only carried out on a decree of the Republic in accordance with the provisions of the following articles.

Article 286

If the Court of Cassation confirms the death sentence as issued, it will send the case file to the

⁹³ Note that Articles 285 to 293 having been suspended by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(m), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003 were re-instated by Law 13 of 2007 which purported to give them retrospective effect to 8 August 2004, the date on which Order 3 of 2004: Re-instating the Death Penalty, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3987 of September 2004 came into force

The President of the Republic issues the decree for carrying out the sentence, or for commuting it, or for pardoning the condemned person. If he issues the decree for implementation, the Prime Minister⁹⁵ issues an order to that effect, including the decree of the Republic, in accordance with legal provisions.

Article 287

- A. If the condemned person is pregnant when the order for implementation arrives, it is the responsibility of the prison administration to inform the Chief Prosecutor to present a notification to the Minister of Justice to delay execution of the sentence, or to reduce it. The Minister of Justice then submits this notification to the President of the Republic. Implementation of the sentence is delayed until another order is issued by the Minister of Justice in accordance with the decision of the President of the Republic. If the renewed order rules for implementation of the death sentence, it is not carried out until four months after the date of delivery of the child, whether the delivery is before or after the arrival of the order.
- B. The judgment in sub-paragraph A is applicable to a condemned person whose child is delivered before the arrival of the order for implementation if the period of four months from the date of her confinement has not expired. The sentence is not carried out until four months have elapsed from the date of her confinement, even if the renewed order for implementation arrives.

Article 288⁹⁶

The sentence of death is carried out by hanging within the prison, or any other place in accordance with the law after the issue of the decree of the President of the Republic for the sentence to be carried out in accordance with Article 286⁹⁷. The execution is witnessed by the Implementation Board, comprising a Misdemeanour Court judge, a member of the Public Prosecution, if available, a representative of the Ministry of the Interior, the director of the prison and the prison doctor, or any other doctor delegated by the Ministry of Health. The accused's legal representative is excused from attendance if he so requests.

Article 289

- B. If the condemned person wishes to make a statement, the judge notes down what is said and this is endorsed by the other members present.

⁹⁴ Law 13 of 2006 provided that the Prime Minister replace the Minister of Justice in this role

⁹⁵ Law 13 of 2006 provided that the Prime Minister replace the Minister of Justice in this role

⁹⁶ This Paragraph was amended by Law 65 of 1974 (Third amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971), published in the Official Gazette, issue 2348 of 7 May 5 1974

⁹⁷ The text “after the issue of the decree of the Republic for the sentence to be carried out in accordance with Article 286” was substituted for the original text which read “after passing a period not less than 30 days on the date of its issue by the competent Criminal Court in accordance with Law No. 65 of 1974 (Third amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code No. 23 of 1971), published in the Official Gazette, issue 2348 of 7 May 1974

- C. Once the sentence has been carried out, the director of the prison signs a form, on which he doctor confirms death, and the time this took place, and the remainder of those resent sign the document accordingly.

Article 290

The death penalty cannot be carried out on official holidays and special festivals connected with the religion of the condemned person.

Article 293

SECTION 3 - IMPLEMENTATION OF CUSTODIAL SENTENCES AND FINES

Article 294

- A. The sentence is calculated from the day it is implemented against the convicted until noon on the day he is discharged.
- B. If the period of imprisonment or detention is only 24 hours, then the convicted person need not spend longer than this time in prison.

Article 295

The period of detention is deducted from the period of the sentence issued against the convicted person for the same offence. If there are several offences within the same case, this period is deducted from the least severe penalty.

Article 296

If a man and his wife are both awarded custodial sentences for a period of more than one year for different offences, and they have not been in prison before, implementation of the sentence with regard to one of them can be postponed if they have responsibility for a young child of less that 12 years and they have a fixed place of residence.

Article 297

The decision to postpone implementation of a sentence is issued in accordance with Article 296 by the court which issued the sentence, in response to the request of the convicted person. The court will demand bail to guarantee that he returns to serve the sentence upon expiry of the period of time in question. The court calculates the amount of the bail and includes it in the decision issued granting the postponement of implementation. It is the responsibility of the court to make appropriate arrangements in this way to ensure the convicted person does not run away.

Article 298

If a person is sentenced to a fine only, and he has already been detained for the offence of which he has been convicted, the amount of the fine can be reduced⁹⁸ for every day he was detained. If the person is sentenced to imprisonment and a fine, and the period he spent in detention is longer than the period of the prison sentence, the amount of the fine is to be reduced by one half of one dinar for every extra day served. If the number of days in question adds up to exceed the amount of the fine payable, then the court can decide to discharge him.

Article 299

- A. If a person is sentenced to a fine, whether or not with imprisonment as well, and he does not pay the money, the court will sentence him to imprisonment for half of the maximum period for the offence concerned, if he was sentenced to both prison and a fine.
- B. If an offence was punished by a fine only, the period of imprisonment to which the court can sentence the accused in the event of the fine not being paid is reduced proportionally to the amount outstanding⁹⁹. However the total period of the prison sentence must not exceed 2 years.
- C. The prison sentence comes to an end, in the event of non-payment of the fine, upon the discharge of the fine, or a part of it relative to the remainder of the sentence.
- D. Payment of the fine, or a portion of it, can be paid to the court, police station or prison administration, and when this happens the convicted person can be discharged immediately.

BOOK SIX - MISCELLANEOUS

SECTION 1 - CONCLUSION OF A CRIMINAL CASE

Article 300

A criminal case is concluded upon the death of the accused, the issue of a guilty or not guilty judgment, or a judgment or decision of diminished responsibility for the offence concerned, or a final decision for discharge of the accused or a pardon, or the permanent cessation of proceedings, or for other reasons stipulated in law.

Article 301

There cannot be a return to investigation and court proceedings against the accused, for whom the criminal case has been concluded, except under circumstances stipulated in law.

Article 302

⁹⁸ The words "one half of one dinar" were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(n), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

⁹⁹ The words "one day for each one half of one dinar outstanding" were replaced by "reduced proportionally to the amount outstanding" by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(o), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

- A. The final decision issued for the rejection of a complaint in accordance with Article 130 Sub-section A, and the final decision for the rejection of a complaint in accordance with Article 181 Sub-section A, on account of the plaintiff giving up his complaint, both prevent the continuation of proceedings against the accused.
- B. The decision issued to reject the complaint on account of the absence of the Plaintiff does not prevent the resumption of the complaint on another occasion, if the Plaintiff had just cause for being absent.
- C. The final decision issued for the discharge of the accused in accordance with Article 130 sub-section B, or Article 181 sub-section B does not preclude continuation of the proceedings against the accused on the appearance of new evidence requiring it. But no action can be taken if a period of 1 year has passed since the decision for discharge was issued by the court, and 2 years after the decision issued by the investigative judge. Each of these decisions is then final and subject to the consequences outlined in Article 300.
- D. The definitive decision to close a case finally precludes any further investigation proceedings, but if the decision to close it is temporary, the investigation cannot resume until new evidence is presented.

Article 303

The investigation or court proceedings against an accused may be resumed after the criminal case has been closed if, after the issue of the judgment or definitive or final decision, it emerges that there was an act or consequence of the offence for which the accused was tried, or had proceedings taken against him, which was fundamentally different from the facts as presented in the trial.

Article 304

If the accused dies during the investigation or trial, then the decision is issued to bring the proceedings to a final halt, and the civil case will also stop in consequence. In this case, the civil plaintiff has the right to consult the Civil Court.

Article 305

If a general amnesty is called, and the proceedings and trial against the accused are stopped, the victim of the offence has the right to refer to the Civil Court.

Article 306¹⁰⁰

Article 307

The discharge of a case for any lawful reason does not prevent the confiscation of goods whose possession is prohibited in law.

Section 2 - The Handling of Impounded Goods

¹⁰⁰ This Article which had read “issue of a Republican edict for a special amnesty wipes out the principal and secondary penalties, without prejudice to the right to restitution, compensation, or confiscation.” was suspended by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(p), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

Article 308

Article 312

No decision to hand over goods can be implemented until it has become definitive, and no decision to destroy manuscript or printed materials can be implemented until the criminal proceedings are complete in respect of all the accused persons.

Article 313

- A. The decision of the judge or court to hand over impounded goods does not preclude referral to the civil court by the person claiming their ownership.
- B. If a dispute arises over the ownership or possession of an impounded item, and a person connected with it seeks a postponement of the decision to hand it over, the handover may be deferred until the dispute is resolved by the Civil Court, and the judge or the court will proceed with the investigation or trial.
- C. If the items mentioned in sub-paragraph B are deteriorating rapidly or the cost of their retention is extremely high, the investigative judge or criminal court are permitted to sell them in accordance with the Law of Implementation and to retain the proceeds until the results of the court proceedings.

Article 314

- A. If no one claims ownership of impounded goods, the investigative judge or court is to issue a list of the items concerned. People then have 6 months in which to come forward to prove their claim to the items within a period. The list is displayed on notice-boards in the court and at the police station. If the property impounded was valuable, then the notice will also be published in local newspapers as well.

- B. The investigative judge or court may hand over the impounded goods to anyone able to prove ownership within the period stipulated in law, otherwise they are to be sold on the decision of the judge or court, in accordance with the Law of Implementation, and the income becomes a benefit to the Treasury.

Article 315

Anyone finding items or property thought to be the result of a offence should inform the investigative judge or the court, whose duty it is to dispose of the items in the manner prescribed above.

Article 316

All rights to ownership of the items mentioned in the above provisions are forfeit unless claims are made within a period of five years from the date announced for handover or for sale for the benefit of the Treasury.

¹⁰¹ The words "and with the payment, within a specified period, of surety of not less than 20 dinars and not more than 200 dinars," were deleted by CPA Memorandum 3, Section 4(q), signed 18 June 2003, published in the Official Gazette, issue 3978 of 17 August 2003

Once the investigation is concluded, he issues a decision, rejecting the application if no steps are required against the accused person, or accepting it and binding over the person concerned, with or without bail, and with the payment of a surety¹⁰² within a specified period if he has committed an action stipulated in the second sub-paragraph of Article 321.

CHAPTER 3 - JOINT RULINGS TO KEEP THE PEACE AND BE OF GOOD BEHAVIOUR

Article 325

If the person reported does not attend without any legal excuse and has been notified in accordance with the regulations, the judge may decide that he should be arrested and held, under the provisions of Article 109.

Article 326

- A. Conditional discharge of a person given a custodial sentence may be granted in accordance with the provisions of this law if he has served three-quarters of the period, or two-thirds of it if he is a youth, and if it appears to the court that he has been of good behaviour for the duration. However, the period served must not be less than six months. If consecutive sentences were passed, then the time is calculated on the basis of the total amount, regardless of the number of sentences, even if it exceeds the highest limit for implementation in law. Time spent in detention in connection with the case in question is deducted. If part of the sentence is removed as a result of a special or general amnesty, the remaining period is considered as the basis for the sentence itself.
- B. The provisions for conditional discharge apply to someone against whom rulings have been issued by criminal courts operating under Criminal Procedure Code or of criminal courts formed under special laws. Any person subject to military court proceedings in accordance with the Military Criminal Procedure Code is excepted from these provisions.
- C. The request for conditional discharge is reviewed by the local Court of Misdemeanours, whose jurisdiction covers the prison or rehabilitation centre in which the convicted person serves his sentence. When the request is submitted, even if the person has been transferred to another prison or centre, the President of the Court of Appeal may specify one or more Courts of Misdemeanour, distributing the work between them by means of a formal notification. The decision issued by the court is subject to appeal through cassation by the Public Prosecution or the petitioner for conditional discharge at the Court of Misdemeanours.
